

1. If I want information on a product or service it is all readily available via the internet or yellow pages of a phone book.
2. If I've canceled a service with a bank or credit card I obviously am no longer interested in their service and do not want them bothering me to try to get me back. I also do not want any of their affiliates contacting me for their service or product. (See comment #1)